

Track & Field News

BYU Honors Five Members of Women's Track and Field Team

by Melissa Soderberg, BYU Athletic Communications

All-Americans Katie Palmer, Angela Wagner, Lacey Cramer, Amy Menlove and Nachele Stewart will be honored at the Hinckley Center Assembly Hall on Tuesday for their performance at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships.

BYU Photo/Mark Philbrick

PROVO, Utah (March 20, 2009) – Two national champions and three All-American athletes from the BYU women's track and field team will be honored Tuesday afternoon at the Hinckley Center Assembly Hall at BYU for their performance at the NCAA Indoor National Championships.

"It's really a privilege for us to be honored," said All-American and national champion Amy Menlove. "I highly respect BYU as a school and it's exciting to represent the school you love. The fact that it's taking the time to recognize our achievements is very special and we all are very grateful."

Those athletes receiving recognition include true freshman 800-meter national champion Lacey Cramer, pentathlon national champion Amy Menlove, sophomore standout Katie Palmer, Angela Wagner and Nachele Stewart.

The distance medley relay team made up of Cramer, Palmer, Stewart and Wagner and placed third shattering the previous school and conference record set this season. Palmer also went on to place fourth in the 800-meter.

The event will begin at 12:30 p.m. MT and will last until 1:30 p.m. It is for the athletes, their parents and BYU administration.